NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

JOHN RYAN of Joliet, Ill., has won the $500 prize offered by a boot and shoe newspaper of Boston for the best essay on boot and shoemaking in all its branches. Ryan is a practical shoemaker who works on his bench every day.

PRESIDENT HARRISON remained in Washington and went to church yesterday. Democratic newspapers will soon inform the country that he was prevented from spending the day out of town by the pressure of office seekers, who kept him from his Sunday morning nap.

SEVEN alleged murderers of Cronin were indicted by the Chicago grand jury on Saturday. They are Martin Burke, John F. Beggs, Daniel Coughlin, Patrick O. Sullivan, Frank Woodruff, Patrick Conney and John Kuntze. The case of Alexander Sullivan will be taken up by a new grand jury, which met to-day. The Clan-na-Gael appears to be almost as productive of galloway birds as the Anarchist societies.

ANOTHER African railroad has been projected by the British East Africa Company. It is to start from Mombassa on the Indian ocean and penetrate the continent to Lake Victoria Nyanza. Two caravans of 1,000 people each have explored the country, surveyed the route and chosen sites for stations. The larger railroad projected by English, Belgian and American capitalists, which is to penetrate the continent eastward from the Upper Congo, will lay open to the world the heart of Central Africa.

ARTIST MORRIS RUBENS of Albany, on returning home from New York Saturday night, found his wife and infant child apparently asleep, and not wishing to disturb them, lay down in another room. On going to awaken his wife in the morning he found her lying and the baby dead. Mrs. Rubens had been ill on Saturday and taken an opiate. Whether she gave some to the child in her delirium or rolled upon it and suffocated it is not known. She died soon after her husband discovered her, without regarding consciousness.

ALL of the Chicago suburbs voted in favor of annexation on Saturday. The addition to the population is claimed to be 300,000, which will carry the total for the city up to 1,200,000 if the "directory canvass is correct. This, it is expected, will make Chicago the second city of the Union, putting it ahead of Philadelphia and Brooklyn. Chicago also becomes the largest city of the United States in area. In 1880 its area was 40 miles and that of Philadelphia 120. Now by annexing everything that joins it it becomes larger in extent than Philadelphia. By the census of 1880 Philadelphia had 847,170 inhabitants, Brooklyn 566,663 and Chicago 503,185.

THE classification bill for the New York postoffice passed by the recent Democratic Congress and signed by Mr. Cleveland appears to have been overlooked by everybody employed in the postoffice until the Civil Service Commission called Postmaster Van Cott's attention to it. By the assistant superintendents are denominated foremen, and their salaries are reduced from $2,800, $2,500 and $2,000 to $1,400 and $1,300. Some of the $1,200 foremen find themselves chiefs over $1,600 clerks. The bill was either a blunder or a piece of Democratic spite after it was known that the office would pass under Republican management. The next Congress will probably correct it, but it must be endured to the end of the fiscal year that began to-day.

FOUR appeals against sentence by misdemeanants of all sorts were dismissed by the New York Court of General Sessions last Saturday. By a trick of the lawyers cases of this sort have been allowed to go unnoticed while the convicted persons were out on bail pending a decision, and the accommodation prosecuting officer failed to move their dismissal. The last grand jury, however, directed the District Attorney to look after the matter. He did so, and one of his assistants moved their dismissal before Recorder Smyth. The appellants must now stand their sentences, either of fines or penitentiary service. There are hundreds of these belated cases, and if they are all taken up and treated in the same way, it will greatly weaken the party of David B. Hill in the coming campaign.

NOTHING has yet occurred to indicate that the fight between Sullivan and Kilrain will be prevented, and it is expected to take place somewhere in Louisiana on Wednesday. The place selected is not announced, and parties wishing to see the "mill" will have to go to New Orleans and take a train that will be pointed out to them. There are some fears that Kilrain will get away with the "cultured" Bostonian, as Sullivan has suffered recently from prolonged drunken sprees, and his training in Canada has not fitted him, as that of Kilrain in Baltimore has done, for fighting in the hot and depressing atmosphere of Louisiana. However, Gov. Nichols continues his threats, and says he can find law enough to break up the fight, the opinions of the Attorney General and District Attorney to the contrary notwithstanding. Members of the "fancy" should not leave Nichols entirely out when placing their bets.

GEORGE Bliss of New York has reasons of his own for disliking Gov. Hill's peanut politics. We have already mentioned the fact that the Governor vetoed the allowance to Bliss for services as counsel to the committee on general laws, and approved the attorney to Roger A. Pryor, Democrat, for similar service. The Bliss claim was vetoed on the ground that no counsel was necessary, or if it was, one such lawyer as Pryor was sufficient. Col. Bliss says he was employed in 1888 as first counsel, but the Democrats on the committee wanted their side represented and Pryor was added. But at Pryor's request Bliss acted as leading counsel and did all the work of procuring witnesses. Last year, Bliss and Pryor put in bills for $3,000 each, but Hill vetoed all bills for counsel that year. But Pryor got his pay from some unexpected appropriation. This year both put in bills of $1,000 for services at the last session. Pryor's was approved, making his receipts $4,000, while Bliss is not paid a dollar. But as the Governor approved bills of $3,000 to counsel employed seven years ago, he says he is not without hope and can afford to wait.

TROUBLE IN A CHURCH.

A GREAT FLOOD OF IMMIGRATION.

Europe's Unskilled Laborers Coming to America by Thousands.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—The flood of European immigration, always heaviest in the summer, has set in with increased volume and the officials of the port expect that 1889 will exceed all previous years in the number of arrivals. Every steamer arriving brings hundreds of foreigners in the steerage and the cheap boarding houses of Liverpool and Queenstown are crowded with immigrants awaiting an opportunity to secure passage. The outpouring of people from the green soil of Ireland is particularly heavy and in Queenstown it has been found necessary to pitch tents in the streets to accommodate those who cannot find lodgings. Last year's arrivals at Philadelphia numbered 90,433, but this year they will approach nearly 50,000. The steamer Ohio landed last week 768 passengers, and other vessels of the American Line are following with larger crowds. More than two-thirds of the immigrants are from Ireland, and the remainder are from Germany, Poland, Bohemia, Hungary, and other parts of Europe. But few skilled artisans leave Europe, and the immigrants landed on these shores are generally those who have neither the inclination nor knowledge of work.

Appointments by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The President today made these appointments: A. Loudon Snowden, of Pennsylvania, to be Minister Resident and Consul-General to Romania, Servia, Bulgaria, Greece, and the Ionian Islands; of Ohio, to be Consul-General at Berlin; Augustus O. Bourne, of Rhode Island, to be Consul-General at Rome; Eugene Schuyler, of New York, to be Agent and Consul-General at Cairo. To be Consuls of the United States: Wallace Bruce, of New York, at Leith; William Harrison Bradley, of Illinois, at Nice; Edmund B. Fairchild, of Michigan, at Lyons; Irving J. May, of Nebraska, at Athens; William L. Brown, of Kentucky, at Tien Tsin; Adolph G. Stuber, of Iowa, at Barmen; Enoch J. Smithers, of Delaware, at Osaka and Higo; Alexander C. Moore, of West Virginia, at St. Thomas; Charles F. Johnson, of Ohio, at Hamburg; Siles G. Hays, New Jersey, at Sonneberg.

Trouble in an M. E. Church.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—Deep feeling has been aroused in the Broad-Street M. E. Church over the acquittal of Trustee Samuel Crowder, who was charged with the murder of a colored man, and who was acquitted by the jury in declaring that he had retired from the church in declining to join the M. E. church. The affair almost culminated in a pugilistic encounter in front of the church after the trial between David McBurnie, an adherent of the Hope, and some of the disaffected ones of withdrawing from the church. WATERLOO, N. Y., July 1.—One life was lost by the sinking of the steamer Armstrong near Brockville yesterday. P. D. McFalls, said to be ticket agent at Montreal for the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company, was a passenger. The boat went down before anything could be done to save him. The Armstrong is at the bottom of the river in 83 feet of water.

At Johnston-to-Day.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 1.—The work of cleaning up the Conemaugh from the jam to the Captlet steel works was started to-day. About 500 men are at work on this part of the river. So far few bodies have been taken from the wire that is lodged in the water. All the bodies so far taken out are in a good state of preservation.

SEIZURE OF THE STEAMER OZAMA.

Captain Rockwell Gives a Circumstantial Account of the Affair.

NEW-YORK, July 1.—Captain Rockwell, of the steamer Ozama, gave the following account of the capture and release of the steamer: The Ozama left this City June 2 for Gonaves, Hayti. She carried a cargo of provisions, but no arms or ammunition. On the morning of June 9, when the Ozama was 32 miles from Gonaves, three Haytian gun-boats were discovered rapidly approaching. Captain Rockwell, not wishing to be delayed by any of the Haytian war vessels, was constantly subjecting American vessels, piled on steam and forced ahead as fast as he could. The gun-boats he soon made out to be the gun-boats of the Haytian Government, the Defense, the Marselle, and the Toussaint L'Ouverture. The Ozama had not gone far when suddenly from the long gun on the low of the Defense came a flash and a cannon ball struck the bow of the Ozama, and the gun-boats were discovered rapidly approaching. The gun-boats he soon made out to be the gun-boats of the Haytian Government, the Defense, the Marselle, and the Toussaint L'Ouverture. The Ozama had not gone far when suddenly from the long gun on the low of the Defense came a flash and a cannon ball struck the bow of the Ozama, and the gun-boats were discovered rapidly approaching.

Early next morning the Ozama was taken into the inner harbor and anchored near the guns of the fort. Captain Rockwell immediately went ashore and sought out Minister Thompson who represents this country in Hayti. The American Minister commended the Haytian Government for asking why the Ozama was detained and demanding her release. Not the slightest attention was paid to the letter that day. Next morning the American man-of-war Osage steamed into the harbor, and Captain Kellogg, on board, as soon as she anchored, Captain Rockwell pulled out to her and met Captain Kellogg coming in. Both ships stopped and Captain Rockwell told his story. Captain Kellogg's ship backed away and the gun-boats were ordered to get out of the harbor. "By God! I'll take her out of here," said Kellogg. "Both commanders then went ashore and proceeded to the American Minister's house. The entrance of the Osage into the harbor had started the Haytian dignitaries, for they were at the American Minister's house in full force. There were three or four officials, Captain Rockwell says, but he does not remember their names. They were all in uniform. He is a short, thick-set, dark complexioned man, with a pair of piercing black eyes and a very determined cast of countenance. After being introduced the Haytiens were ordered to get out of the harbor. "By God! I'll take her out of here," said Kellogg. At a Navy Yard.

NORFOLK, Va., July 1.—Active operations commenced at the Navy Yard to-day, the beginning of the new fiscal year, and several hundred mechanics and laborers will be put to work. The working force is to be increased to 1,500 men. The work of fitting out the Pensacola will be at once resumed, and it will be ready for sea within five weeks. The monitor Amphitrite is expected here from League Island by July 15 and will go ahead immediately. The gun-boat Petrel will also receive its finishing touches this month. The force of hands on the battleship Texas is being increased as the work progresses.

That Cloud-Burst Near Shenandoah.

SHENANDOAH, July 1.—The cloud-burst at Rotterdam on Saturday is thus described: "A thunder shower from the north and another from the south met. A deluge of water followed, swelling a small creek, which entirely dries up in summer, to a river. The water rose five feet in a few minutes, higher than it had been in 20 years. It overflowed its banks, flooding meadows and fields, and destroying hay and other crops to the extent of $100 or $200 each for a dozen farmers. One boy driving along a road near the creek had a narrow escape. The water carried off her wagon box, but she reached high ground in safety."

The Death Record.

Dr. Joseph Lloyd Martin, one of the most prominent physicians in Baltimore, died in that City last night after a long illness, aged 69.

Dr. Daniel R. Gardner, the leading physician of Woodbury, N. J., died at White Sulphur Springs, West-Virginia, yesterday.

NEW-YORK, July 1.—The stock market this morning was extremely dull for most of the list and only in St. Paul and Atchafalaya of the regular list and Sugar and Lead Trusts were there any marked animation. First prices were higher than Saturday's closing figures, and the advances extended to 4 per cent. The subsequent movements were generally slight, but Atchafalaya developed considerable weakness and after opening at 44 1/2 declined to 43 1/2, while Sugar opened at 12 1/2 and sold up to 12 3/4 against 11 1/2 Saturday night. Lead rose from 34 to 34 1/2 and again settled back at old Sugar also.

A Table That Will Interest Ball Players—National Lawn Tennis Association.

There is no change in the standing of the League clubs further than the usual advance in the number of wins which the New-York and Brooklyn are getting close to the leaders. In the Association the Brooklyn are in second place and are making a strong fight for the lead. The record to date is as follows:

League.	Wins.	Losses.	Per Cent.
Boston	10	4	71.4
Cleveland	9	5	64.3
New York	8	6	57.1
Philadelphia	7	7	50.0
Chicago	6	8	42.9
Pittsburgh	5	9	35.7
Indianapolis	4	10	28.6
St. Louis	3	11	21.4
Washington	2	12	14.3
Portland	1	13	7.1
San Francisco	0	14	0.0

The following are the scores of games played this forenoon by clubs in the International League: At London—Buffalo 10, London 9. At Hamilton—Hamilton 4, Rochester 2. At Toronto—Toronto 2, Syracuse 1.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—The steamer Rio de Janeiro arrived last night from Hong Kong and Yokohama. One of the most destructive rain storms in the history of Hong Kong occurred on May 29 and 30. The rainfall for 33 hours was 29 1/2 inches, at one time the fall measuring three inches per hour. Hong Kong papers do not venture to estimate the loss to private property, such as residences, stores, etc., but estimate the loss to public property at about $200,000. Scarcely a house within an area of 32 square miles but what suffered. All the roads and streets in the colony were turned into mud heaps, and innumerable shops and dwellings were flooded. Almost every minute during the storm vivid flashes of lightning lit up the streets, which resembled the beds of rivers more than the roads in the centre of the town. The water-pipes burst at every corner, the roads were cut up almost beyond recognition, and the level roads were piled with the earth and loosened stone and debris of the upper streets so as to be impassable. Eight men were killed. Lightning in a mad dash. One Chinaman was killed in the falling in of a mat-shed. On one street a man and boy were drowned in a flooded house. In one district a house collapsed, burying several people, four of whom were seriously or fatally injured. One man was drowned in the street, and another was drowned in a house while it was

THE MOVEMENT AGAINST MR. LINCOLN.

The Sun a few weeks ago published a batch of personal letters written from Washington by Horace Greeley to Charles A. Dana during that memorable struggle in Congress which resulted in the election of Nathaniel P. Banks to the Speakership in 1856. These letters were interesting chiefly as throwing new light upon the characteristics, notions and idiosyncrasies of Mr. Greeley himself.
They were almost worthless as contributions to the history of the time.

Yesterday the Sun published a series of letters written by different gentlemen of the Republican or Union party in the summer and fall of 1864. They were begun in the darkest period of the war, when doubt as to the final result had filled the North with discouragement. Mr. Lincoln had been re-nominated at Baltimore in June, and Gen. Fremont had been previously placed in the field by a combination of opposition to Mr. Lincoln. The letters relate to a movement which appears to have been begun in August to drive Lincoln and Fremont both off the course and take up a new candidate. Most of the letters were addressed to John Austin Stevens, Jr., of New York, in answer to a circular containing a call for a new convention at Cincinnati on the 28th of September, the stated object being "to concentrate the Union strength on some one candidate who commands the confidence of the country, even by a new nomination if necessary."

The letters indicate great dissatisfaction with Mr. Lincoln's administration. Horace Greeley wrote, August 18th, "Mr. Lincoln is already beaten; he cannot be elected." And he suggested either Grant, Butler or Sherman for President and Farragut for Vice-President. Salmon P. Chase wrote, August 19th, that the country was "never more in need of wise counsel and fearless action by and among patriotic men." Henry Winter Davis appears to have been one of the leaders in the movement, for on August 24th he sent Mr. Stevens a list of gentlemen to whom he wished copies of the call to be sent for their signature. Daniel S. Dickinson, who had received 150 votes for Vice-President at the Baltimore convention, expressed the belief on August 26th that Mr. Lincoln, "if fully advised of the state of the public mind, would desire to enter upon a canvass." Richard Smith of the Cincinnati Gazette wrote, August 27th, that "the people regard Mr. Lincoln's candidacy as a misfortune." He did "not know a Lincoln man." Lucius Robinson, then Comptroller of New York and a professed Republican, wrote, August 29th, that in his judgment, "McClan-lin will inevitably be the next President unless Lincoln and Johnson are at once withdrawn and Gen. Grant or Gen. Dix, with a strong and popular candidate for Vice-President, nominated in their places." After declining to sign the call because he was so late that nothing could be done, he wrote that "the action at Baltimore on the 7th of June was the most stupid political suicide that I have ever known." John Jay advised, August 29th, that a letter "addressed to Mr. Lincoln, asking him to withdraw his assent to the Baltimore convention and remit the whole matter to a new convention of the people, and that such a letter might be prepared as would compel his acquiescence in that proposition." Charles Sumner wrote, September 1st, that possibly "Mr. Lincoln will see that he shall be stronger and more united under one another candidate. But if he does not see it, our duty is none the less clear to unite in the opposition to the common enemy." Whitlaw Reid wrote from the Cincinnati Gazette office September 2d that he had induced "the Gazette to come out for Mr. Lincoln's withdrawal," that the article had been telegraphed East, and that "we think McClanlin and Pendleton a very strong ticket and fear the result." Others who wrote approvingly of the movement were W. Shafter from Headquarters of the Department of Virginia and North Carolina, C. B. Sedgwick of Syracuse, Amasa Walker of Massachusetts, Gen. B. F. Butler, J. S.
Prettyman of Delaware, N. McBride of Illinois, and Emil Pretorius of St. Louis. In the long list there were only two men who protested with earnestness against the movement as unwise and suicidal. They were Senator Jacob Collamer of Vermont and Representative Roscoe Conkling of New York. Collamer wrote, August 25th, "It seems to me the party now in power is fully committed, and all its energies and efforts should be devoted to sustain this nomination." Conkling wrote, August 24th, "I do not approve of the call or the movement, and cannot sign it for that reason—of course I cannot present it to others to sign." August 28th he wrote again: "You can all consult your conscience and ease in the prosecution of what you propose. I think, for we are dropping down with a rapidity which will make your leading whether you paddle or not."

The first sign of a change of sentiment appears in a second letter from C. B. Sedgwick September 7th. McClanlin and Pendleton had then been nominated on a peace-at-any-price platform, and Sherman had won the great victory at Atlanta which opened his way to the sea. Sedgwick reported great discouragement in obtaining signatures, and presumed "that the new born enthusiasm created by the Atlanta news will no longer encourage Lincoln that he cannot be persuaded to withdraw." Judge Chase wrote September 20th, advising Mr. Stevens to carry into effect his design "to disconnect yourself wholly from any project of convention unfriendly to the Union nominations at Baltimore." Edgar Conkling wrote from Cincinnati, September 20th, that "we must unite on the people's candidates and choose Lincoln and Johnson, who will be elected by nine-tenths of the electoral votes, or all but two states at most." Daniel S.
Dickinson wrote, September 23d, "I make no doubt of Mr. Lincoln's triumphant election." Whitlaw Reid wrote, September 24, enclosing a telegram to the St. Louis Democrat in which he said: "All this is changed. The outrage on the nation perpetrated at Chicago, the fall of Atlanta, the success of the cause in Vermont and Maine, renders that impossible and unreasonable which then seemed our only safety." Charles Sumner wrote, October 6th, "To my mind the election seems already decided. What next? The rebellion must cave. I am no prophet, but I should not be surprised if this day saw the assurance of peace." Gov. John A. Andrew of Massachusetts wrote in the same hopeful strain.

This remarkable movement, which would inevitably have proved ruinous to the Union cause if carried into effect, was supported by patriotic men who could not, like the brave, patient, never-faltering man in the White House, see the end from the beginning. It was encouraged also by small and ambitious men who had not been given the places that they sought under the administration, and fancied that any change would improve their chances. But the victory at Atlanta settled all doubts, settled the Confederacy, settled the patriotic portion of the people came to the conclusion that no mistake was made at Baltimore, and Lincoln and Johnson received 213 of the 234 votes cast, only Delaware, Kentucky and New Jersey giving their 21 votes to McClanlin and Pendleton.

MC DOW IS FREE.

The mixed jury, seven colored and five white men, acquitted Dr. McDow, the slayer of Editor Dawson of the Charleston News and Courier, after an absence from the court room of two hours, Saturday afternoon. It is ascertained that on retiring the jury took a vote, and it was unanimous for acquittal.
The two hours were subsequently spent in discussing the case.

The murder caused intense excitement throughout the country, because of the professional and social standing of the victim and the somewhat clouded reputation of the man who slew him. Dawson, an Englishman, had crossed the Atlantic to enlist in the Confederate army, and since the war had strongly advocated "Southern principles" in his paper. This sufficed to make him popular. McDow was a practicing physician, inclined to be socially "fast," and had haunted down and placed temptation in the way of Dawson's pretty servant girl. One afternoon Dawson went into the Doctor's office to remonstrate against his conduct with this member of his family. He was brought out dead a few hours afterwards. Of the causes that led to his death McDow, who confessed that he killed him, was the only witness. He told a story of violence by Dawson and of necessary self-defense by himself. There were no witnesses to contradict him, while there was abundant evidence that Dawson possessed a hasty and violent temper.
There was room for doubt of McDow's intent to kill, there was the offense of Dawson intruding upon him in the privacy of his office for a reason that was neither a business nor a professional one, there was serious cause for suspecting that Dawson's intention in the girl was inspired by jealousy rather than a chivalric regard for her honor, and there was the proof that the girl herself had acted imprudently and encouraged the doctor's dishonorable attentions. All these considerations had their weight with the jury. The verdict is not in the interest of morality or public safety, but it was one that might have been expected in a Southern court. McDow was certainly guilty of one of the degrees of manslaughter, and in a Northern state he would have been given several years in prison. But there is not a court and there could not be impeded a jury of twelve men in the United States which would decide that he was guilty of murder in the first degree and deserved death.

The wise thing for Dawson to have done when he discovered the relations of McDow and the servant girl was to dismiss the latter. The wise thing for McDow to do is to leave Charleston, settle in some place where his crime will not follow him, and amend his life. His acquittal is a triumph for which he is mainly indebted to the very able lawyers who defended him and the stupidity of the prosecution.

ANOTHER GOOD WOMAN GONE.
The death of Maria Mitchell of Vassar college has been followed with tragical sadness by that of Miss Mary A. Brigham, for twenty-eight years a teacher in Brooklyn Heights Seminary and the President-elect of Mt. Holyoke Seminary, the institution founded by Mary Lyon more than fifty years ago.
Miss Brigham was returning to her home in Brooklyn from a visit to Mt. Holyoke on Saturday afternoon, and was a passenger on the train on the Consolidated road which was wrecked about three miles north of New York, by being thrown from the track. She was seated in the middle of the drawing room car which went down in the wreck, and was instantly killed by the crushing of her head against the side of the car. A member of the train's crew sitting in front of her was also killed, while E. M. Read, Vice President of the road, who occupied the next seat behind her, escaped unhurt.

Miss Brigham was educated at Mt. Holyoke, graduating in 1860 and serving in the same institution and in a school in Central New York for a few months afterwards. She then formed the connection with the Brooklyn institution into which she served with great success until induced to sever her relation to become President of her alma mater. She had previously declined the Presidency of Smith College at Northampton, but decided to go to Mt. Holyoke with the object of obtaining a college charter for the institution. Educators throughout the country expressed the opinion that under her direction Mt. Holyoke would soon take rank with Vassar and Wellesley in the front rank of women's colleges. Miss Brigham was about 55 years old, and a native of Westborough, Mass.

less than 70 pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For
